The Fox's Trail, a visual novel by Media Factory, is a story of mystery, love, and adventure. You control a Leshin named Vannir who investigates a murder on the ship of the Fey after a mysterious incident caused by another Leshin who is the headmaster of the ship. Vannir, having been exploring the Fey since early childhood, has long familiarized himself with the magical elements of the Fey rifts to the point where he is able to see magic as an intangible phenomenon. In order to investigate the incident that caused the killing and to protect her father, the acting leader of the crew, Vannir must team up with an old friend, a law enforcer from the Fey, and then solve a mystery that continues beyond the main plot. Although Vannir and the other main characters are mostly mute, there are a wide variety of characters that appear in-game. These include characters from the Macross and Gundam series, as well as a character from the film Transformers 3. The game also makes an effort to add Eastern-inspired costumes, motifs, and music. About The Author, Cries-Of-The-Elysion: Cries-Of-The-Elysion is the character voice actor for Vannir. He is a musician and a fan of many genres of music, from traditional jazz and classical to rock, electronic, and whatever else is around at the time. Having graduated from a radio production school, he has held positions at several digital radio stations as a producer. He has also worked as a radio and guest DJ at a number of alternative parties, including the Japanese Festival 'Sanrio Festa' in November. Cries-Of-The-Elysion is also the vocalist of the band 'Love in Silent Air', and is currently a regular in the 'Yugioh Card Battle' group called 'Elysion Protectors'. His primary music influences are David Bowie and Tetsuya Fujii. Please do not take credit for any ideas, images, or song usage; I only make music because I love it. Free Evil Buster With Serial Key (Latest)

The Charnel House is a horror game about the horrors of life. You play as Alex, a sexy and playful student-at-heart with a nasty habit of "experiencing" people. When your friends suggest a trip to the Charnel House, you realize your friend Harold is trying to throw you off to your doom. The game is set in an alternative 1980's, where terrifying supernatural phenomena are a thing of the past. You won't have to wait for the (literal) ride of your life, though, as the Charnel House is much more like a Haunted Mansion. It's not at all scary, but you can still jump through its doors. The house is called the Charnel House for a reason. When you get there, you're quickly surrounded by the imposing real estate agency run by the psychopathic couple Madeline and Drake. Their ludicrous ideas for a living room make you want to run for your life. When it comes to existential dread and the presence of the uncanny, the Charnel House is a masterclass in terror. The developers of the franchise, Charnel Games, have been working on this game for years, and it shows. The game features a fantastic soundtrack, a beautiful, atmospheric, and challenging game engine, and dark humor that plays to the horror genre's roots. Although you'll have to work for your entry into the Charnel House, the climbing ropes that make it easier to reach the top will make up for all of it once you get there. Gameplay: There are no real decisions to be made in The Charnel House; you can be the chipper person who keeps your mouth shut and your dick in your pants and also you can be the sociopathic psychopathic asshole that lures people to their doom by forcing them to experience things they fear. This is a game about walking slowly towards your own death; The Charnel House is the most unique game of our time in which the protagonist has no real power to do anything. To make matters worse, your sole form of defense is to jump around like a mental patient who keeps showing up in public spaces. There are no weapons, there is no sense of urgency, and there is no tactical gameplay. There is the difficulty curve - the number of enemies that appear when you jump on the ground and the amount of time that passes from when you walk into the house to when you're
