Currently I can clean spaces from the beginning or the end of a line with sed: sed -e's/^[[:space:]]//g' -e's/[[:space:]]$//g' but is it possible to replace all spaces with empty spaces on a line? Something like this: sed -e's/ / /g' or sed -i -e's/ / /g' Is it possible? A: This will do it in a single sed script: sed's/[[:space:]]//g; s/[[:space:]] //g' infile Note you may need to escape , depending on your shell. A patient with a neurologic picture due to cryptococcal infection and anti-N-methyl-D-aspartate receptor encephalitis. Anti-N-methyl-D-aspartate receptor encephalitis has become a well-known condition in recent years, mainly, in association with ovarian teratoma, but also with other neoplasias. We describe a 24-year-old man who presented a clinical picture consistent with autoimmune encephalitis. Magnetic resonance imaging showed numerous cortical and subcortical hyperintensities (characteristic of anti-N-methyl-D-aspartate receptor encephalitis) and an extremely high level of cryptococcal antigen in serum, cerebrospinal fluid and urine. Q: Redirecting with ActionScript 3 (AS3) I want to open a new browser window, but I can't seem to get it right. The url I want to open is This is what I have tried so far. var params:URLVariables = new URLVariables(["cid=1"]); var request:URLRequest = new URLRequest(); request.url = "" + URLLoader(params).data; navigateToURL(request); The first URL is being opened but not the second. Any help or pointers would be great. A: Do you have some reason to believe that navigating to will result in a valid URL? If so, then your code should work, but it's important to notice URLLoader's data parameter. In addition to passing the data to a URLLoader you have to supply this to the URLRequest too. var params:URLVariables = new URLVariables(["cid=1"]); var request:URLRequest = new URLRequest(); request.url = "" + URLLoader(params).data; navigateToURL(request); Hope this helps! A: Replace all those lines with var params:URLVariables = new URLVariables(); params.cid = 1; var request:URLRequest = new URLRequest(); request.url = "" + URLLoader(params).data; navigateToURL(request); Trevor Hughes –
