Four Spanish policemen have been indicted by the Madrid Court for aiding the Madrid terrorist attacks of 2003 By Juan Carlos Perez Madrid, July 19 (IANS) Spain's national police forces are gearing up for a post-Ramadan extravaganza with "anti-terror patrols", "anti-radicalisation" workshops, and a pro-Erdogan march. The Madrid Court indicted four Spanish policemen on Saturday for aiding the Madrid terrorist attacks of 2003. "The purpose of the patrols is to combat radicalisation," said Jose Avellana, the head of the Association of the Citizens of Spain (Asamblea Nacional de los Ciudadanos de España -ANC), an association working closely with the police. Avellana said the patrols were expected to take place in several shopping districts on August 4th, as they will be celebrating the end of Ramadan that day. The Association said that the patrols will be made up of about a dozen policemen. They will begin walking around the popular shopping districts in Madrid at 9.00 a.m. and end their patrol at 2.00 p.m. "We will also explain the anti-terrorist struggle to the public in one of the most visited places in Madrid," Avellana told EFE, adding that the patrols will include workshops on "what the so-called Islamic State (IS) is about" and there will be a pro-Erdogan march in the area. Avellana said he expects to bring "a lot of people" to the anti-radicalisation workshops. "We invite the people affected, psychologists and lawyers, to come and help us," he said. Another one of Avellana's projects includes "anti-radicalisation
